A special agent was sent to Washington by a New York life insurance company with the hope of getting Senator Clark to take out a policy. The Montana man, whose income from copper properties alone is about $2,000,000 a month, listened to the agent's siren song and replied: "I don't need the money, and, besides, I don't think your company would accept me as a risk." Mr. Clark has been a distinct disappointment to the Washington society, which had expected that on his arrival there he would entertain in Monte Cristo fashion. Instead he has lived very quietly, but gossip has it that he is about to build a splendid mansion in the capital and that in a social way he will then make up for lost time.

ECLIPSE CHANGES.

The engineering force of the gasoline schooner Eclipse has undergone a change. A. Walker taking the place of chief engineer of the vessel, Vice Nones, who is going to the Coast. Mr. Kelly, formerly of the gasoline schooner Malolo, has taken the place of second engineer of the Eclipse.

The largest electrical transmission plant in the United States, save that of Niagara, and capable of generating upward of 300,000 horse power, is now being projected in Northern Plumas county, California, where the backers of the enterprise have purchased 12,000 acres of swamp and pasture lands for the purpose. The basins named are to be converted into great storage reservoirs, and by about ten miles of canal and tunnel, plans are to convey water to the canon of Mosquito creek, where, with a vertical fall of 1600 feet, it will be dropped again into the Feather. The Big Meadows basin of 11,000 acres will have the greatest capacity of any artificial storage reservoir known, and will impound about 50 per cent of the fresh waters of the north fork of the Feather emptying into it. In addition to developing the mining and lumber interests of this mountain region, as well as other industries along the route, this power will be carried to San Francisco, a distance of 175 miles.

The first Minister to the United States from the Republic of Cuba, Gonzalo de Quesada, is of an old revolutionary family of the island, whose name has been prominent in every effort made for the liberation of Cuba from Spain, by rebellion or filibuster expeditions alike. Mr. Quesada came to the United States as agent of the Cuban republic in 1897, but was, of course, unrecognized as his accreditation government had no existence. He is still in the thirties, and earned many friends in his previous sojourn in Washington.
